

Upcoming NLC COVID-19 Webinars Offered

WEBINAR | Keeping Essential Services Moving During COVID | Wednesday, April 1, 12:00 PM ET

The Department of Homeland Security released new guidance for cities and states to define “essential workers” that ensure the health, safety, and wellbeing of our residents. Hear directly from DHS on what categories of essential workers were modified and from essential industries on how to best work with them on this new guidance. Register now.

WEBINAR | Combating COVID-19: Why Paid Sick Leave Matters to Controlling its Spread | Wednesday, April 1, 4:00 PM ET

This webinar will highlight the important role of paid sick leave in combating infectious diseases, as well as other complementary evidence-based policies that can be adopted by federal, state and local governments and by employers. Those participating in the webinar will hear about federal legislation, states that have adopted laws regarding paid leave, and businesses that are expanding these benefits. Register now.

WEBINAR | First Responders, Stress Management and Coronavirus:

How to take care of yourself and your family during this crisis | Thursday, April 2, 1:00 PM ET

Coronavirus transformed our lives nearly overnight. In this webinar, former paramedic, law enforcement trainer and resilience expert Mike Taigman will explain how stress affects first responders and provide strategies you can use to manage during the long haul of this pandemic. Register now.

WEBINAR | COVID-19: How Local Leaders Can Help Vulnerable Households Get Online|

Thursday, April 2, 2:00 PM ET

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, most communities have been asked to restrict their movements and access education, work, socializing, and healthcare online at home. Tune in to learn what steps local leaders can take right now to help low-income and vulnerable families to get online during the crisis. Register now.